

Galorath CEO Dan Galorath Launches Blog on Cost Estimation

El Segundo, Calif.—June XX, 2008—Prospects, customers and partners of Galorath Incorporated seeking insight into founder and CEO Dan Galorath's views on the art and science of project estimation can now read his blog on the company's home page (www.galorath.com/wp). Galorath is also looking forward to responding to comments and suggestions posted by readers.

"I want my blog to be a forum on project estimation, meaning I welcome opinions and comments from anyone who takes the time to read it," said Galorath, who started his company in 1979. "Accurate estimation is contingent on applying scientific methods and nothing expresses that better than exchanging views openly and honestly."

Galorath's recent blog postings include contemplations on the pitfalls of fact-free planning, the cost of software project failures and the importance of planning, even when developing software within an agile conceptual framework. Readers are invited to add comments and suggest new topics that can be discussed in future blog entries.

About Galorath Incorporated

For more than two decades Galorath Incorporated has developed solutions to help government and commercial organizations plan and manage complex software, hardware, electronics and manufacturing projects. Leveraging sophisticated modeling technology and project-applicable knowledge bases, SEER solutions enable engineers, project managers, cost analysts and IT professionals worldwide to simulate and analyze alternative project scenarios, develop and optimize detailed project plans and ensure that projects stay on track and meet objectives for functionality, cost, effort, duration, and quality. Combined with extensive consulting and support services, SEER by Galorath is the most comprehensive, intuitive project estimation and management solution in the industry. Visit www.galorath.com for additional information.

###